Excerpt: . . . half 0 mankind, sir, are slaves a ower the face 0 the earth. Im no gaun to blether about the Wast Indian question to a man like you, Mr North, wha kens a the ins and the cuts 0t, better than ony abolitionist that ever sacrificed the sincerity 0 his soul at the shrine 0 East Indian su r. giickler. Hear--hear--hear. --Encore-- The shrine 0 East Indian sugar! North. Speaking of the West India question, there is a great dealtoo much impertinence in Mr Coleridges Six Months Visit. An old man like myself may with some difficulty be excused for occasionally drivelling about his rheumatism, all the world knowing his martyrdom; but who can endure this conceited mannikin, apparently because he is the nephew of a bishop, prating, in print, of his bodily infirmities, in a style that might sicken a horse or an...
