The ever-changing line that marks the borders of the West rested then over the territory of Indiana, and a large part of Kentucky was hardly more than a wilderness. Hospitality was the law of the land. The stranger, pausing on his journey for the night, became a guest of honor. The customs of the time were simple; but there was no want of friendliness in the company that gathered around the rude table to wish the bride and bridegroom a long and prosperous life. The table was loaded with the delicacies of the period. Venison, bear-meat, wild turkey and ducks - all that the forest yielded was there in abundance, and what the occasion may have lacked in formality was made up in good cheer. The wedding festivities over, the young couple began housekeeping in a small cabin near Elizabethtown. The next year a wee daughter came to make the new home more homelike. Soon after the family moved to a farm on the Big South Fork of Nolin Creek. There, on February twelfth in the year eighteen hundred nine, a little boy was born. They gave him the grand old name of Abraham, never dreaming how grandly he was to bear it. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
