This is true in the case of the A. M. Davis Co., of Boston, Mass., which concern created quite a stir in the trade by the announcement that this year it would feature Crane s Linen Lawn papers in the getting out of its Christmas and New Year Art Novelties. Those knowing the quality of the Crane papers can readily appreciate the added value they will give to any line in whose connection they are used. In the Davis line three big points are claimed: First, the cards are created by high-priced designers; second, sizes and shapes are all entirely new and, third, the sentiments are different from the old style greeting and are in prose and verse which appear on the Davis cards exclusively. As the firm states, the line is new clear through and will sell with profit and satisfaction to any stationer.
